TIME AND PLACE.

Democratic Committee Compromise on Time and Place for the National Convention.

Senator Withdraws from the Hopkins Contest.

Delegates will Meet in St. Louis on June 5.

Special to the Press.

Washington February 22 The sub-committee of the national committee met at noon today and decided upon the date and place for holding the next democratic national convention. The committee will meet in the city of St Louis on the 5th day of June 1888 at 12 o'clock noon. The committee was unanimous in the selection of time and place, and it was stated that early action in the matter was necessary in order to give the Democracy of the country ample time to prepare for the campaign. The committee will be made up by the selection of delegates to the National convention from the several states which will be brought into line on the platform. Mr. Dawson of South Carolina, followed in the same

Another proposition was made to fix the time for the first ballot, as well as the days suggested by Mr Scott, referred to Senator Gorman, but in view of the fact that all are pretty well agreed upon the tariff question it was thought unnecessary to hold the convention so early. An opportunity to form a more intelligent sentiment would exist if the convention should not be held until the middle of the month. It was also thought that by the time the convention would assemble the candidates for the presidential nomination would be pretty well developed, and if the Democratic party of New York, should be torn to pieces by the death of Governor Hill, or the election of Governor Flower, it would have been done before the convention met. Upon the first ballot it was thought that the vote of New York would be cast for Governor Hill, and if he should die or withdraw from the contest, the vote would be cast for Governor Flower. Should the latter also withdraw from the contest, the vote would be cast for Governor Cleveland

Manager of the GAZETTE.

The cost to all the hands of the Reading strike is estimated at $2,020,000. The laborer will soon find that blind obedience to the commands of a labor agitator, simply because he represents a labor organization, is a rather costly experience.

The fishery treaty from present appearances will not be ratified by the senate. The fishery interests of New England are strongly arrayed against it, and Senator Frye of Maine, who is perhaps the best informed member of the senate on the fishery question, will vigorously oppose the ratification of the treaty.

The Boston Traveler summarizes the duty of a republican at the present time as follows:

The republican duty is clear and it will be performed. It is to stop all bluster and large talk about nomination by acclamation, and thoughtfully and with great seriousness study out the man who can get every republican vote and some democrats. That man exists.

It is barely possible that the leaders of the democratic hosts have some distant recollections of the heat which prevailed at Chicago when the last national convention was held, and have therefore decided to hold the next convention in a city where the supply of "liquid refreshments" will be sufficiently large to meet the increased demand.

The opinion is gaining ground that the secret sessions of the senate should be abolished. On such questions of national importance as the Mexican reciprocity treaty and the fishery treaty the people have the right to know how their representatives vote. The secret session should not be a feature of such a digni fied and representative American assembly as the United States senate.

Lord Randolph Churchill opposes a parliament for Ireland because England and Scotland have no parliaments. It might be interesting for him to explain state why local parliaments for England Scotland and Ireland would not add to the strength of the general government. The position is "unique" by Lord Randolph Churchill is a very simple one to say the least.

Senator Gorman stated very concisely the reason for his favoring a late day for holding the election of the national convention. It was in order to allow plenty of time for the leaders of the party to agree and reconcile factious elements to agree upon a temporary platform on which both could stand. The dealers in hats are greatly pleased with their part at these democratic gatherings. The delegates seem to be in a state of mind to buy "tiles" and they appear anxious to repair their losses. The people may not allow themselves to be deceived twice in the same manner.

Another attempt will be made to change the election laws of Rhode Island. If the proposed amendment to the state constitution is adopted, it will remove the discriminating clause forbidding citizens who have declared their intention to vote unless they were owners of property. The number of males of voting age in the state is estimated at 85,737, and the number of these who are naturalized citizens is about 25,000. It will be seen that only one third to one half of the legal voters have embraced the opportunity to vote. Rhode Island is the only state in the union which has such restrictive election laws, and it is to be hoped that these laws will be so liberalized that they will come into harmony with those now in force in other states.

It daily becomes more evident that Mr. Blaine's voluntary retirement from the presidential contest is having a powerful influence in harmonizing and strengthening the party in this country. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat remarks:

In all likelihood the engagement of Lotta at the opera house next week will be her last appearance in Colorado Springs, as she is thinking of limiting her future engagements to the eastern cities. She will appear here next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The prices of admission for the two performances will be the same as those charged last year when she appeared here, namely Parquette $2.00, parquette circle $1.50, balcony $1.00, gallery 50 cents.

The ball given by the Hook and Ladder company, at the Red Elk hotel on Wednesday evening, was one of the most successful affairs of its kind ever given under the auspices of the company. The attendance was very large, being placed at over two hundred. The best of order prevailed, and all present thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Much satisfaction was expressed with the pleasant and ample accommodations furnished by Mrs. Kenney and Miss Ord, the proprietors of the hotel.

For several weeks past a woman of rather doubtful reputation has been lodging and boarding at one of the restaurants of the city. Yesterday the proprietor informed her that he was unwilling to accommodate her any longer. Late yesterday afternoon she left the restaurant with her child, which is about six months old. About half-past seven o'clock the child was found nearly frozen upon the front stoop of a residence below the south park. The police at once instituted a diligent search for the wayward mother, but at a late hour were unable to discover her where-abouts. Her baggage is still at the restaurant.

A recent issue of the Chicago Times contained the following concerning the Colorado extension of the Rock Island railroad: "The goal of all Colorado roads has heretofore been to Denver, and that city held out the inducements of a divided trade to tempt the Rock Island to hurry to that point. But coal was the first requisite, coal for distribution over the Kansas and Nebraska territory, and Colorado Springs was the best objective point to secure that article in unlimited quantities. Hence it was very wisely chosen. The Rock Island will get to Denver in due time, but it will first have secured abundant coal supplies and a heavy low-class tonnage for its lines. It extends upon the border of the Indian territory, taking its full share of the live stock traffic from that section, and in addition to secure full benefit of any development by settlement of that fertile region. The trade of northern Mexico is rapidly growing, and the Rock Island will within a couple of years operate the short line from Chicago to the Mexican border. If the California boom is to be permanent the Rock Island will reach out in that direction for its share of the trade, and its transcontinental line will be so judiciously chosen that a lucrative local business will be created all along it."
